A Young Country Preacher

A young country preacher was going to do his first funeral at a little countryside cemetery. This was the first burial in this cemetery. He got lost trying to find the cemetery and was an hour late. He sees the grave is dug and goes over and was surprised that they already had the coffin in the encasement. The gravediggers were already having lunch over by the backhoe and dump truck. So he takes out his Bible and starts preaching and the workers were saying, "Amen, praise the Lord. Hallelujah." This encouraged him and he preached two and a half hours. So, he walks back to his car and opens the door and took off his jacket to put it in the seat and heard one of the men say, "Man I have been installing septic tanks for fifteen years and I have never seen anything like this."

Lion Steve Hampton introduced Chase Jones, KSAN Chief Meteorologist, at our November 16th meeting. Chase talked to us about the El Nino weather pattern that we are currently experiencing. We can expect a colder and wetter winter than normal. He mentioned that El Nino will be around for many years so we will see continued hot summers and colder winters in the future. To make his nightly forecasts, Chase looks at several different national weather centers and he prefers to check on Windy.com for a comprehensive look at weather patterns. There are two super computers - one in Mississippi and one in California that has more weather and perhaps are more accurate than local predictions.
